Sara wakes up suddenly and looks at the clock. It is 6.30. She gets up and has a quick shower, then goes into the kitchen and drinks a glass of orange juice – no time for coffee. Then she goes out into the street. She is lucky – a taxi comes after a few minutes. ‘I hope the roads aren’t too busy,’ she thinks. They arrive at the station. It is 7.15. Richard is there, the tickets are in his hand. ‘We’re too late,’ he said. ‘The train leaves at 7.10.’
