SECTION – A (Reading)

Q.1 Read the following passage carefully:

1. Guava is the fourth most widely grown fruit crop in India. It is known as 'the poor man's fruit'. The guava originated in South America. From there the Spanish and Portuguese traders brought it to Asia, Africa and islands in the Pacific.
2. Guava grows on small trees that have wide spreading branches. The bark of the guava tree is smooth and copper coloured. The guava is a small pear shaped fruit. The pulp of guava contains numerous small hard seeds.
3. The guava is consumed in different ways worldwide. In Hawaii, guava juice is used in punches, ice creams and milkshakes. The guava is ideal for making jelly. It is also used to make sherbets and squashes. In India, the guava fruit is eaten raw, sometimes with a pinch of salt and pepper.
4. Apart from the fruit, other parts of guava tree are also useful. The leaves have medicinal value and are chewed to relieve toothache. The crushed leaves are applied on ulcers and wounds. In India, its wood is in demand for carving, elsewhere, it is used to make spinning tops and hair combs and is also burnt as fuel.
