Half of the shampoo which should be already prepared, may now be poured on to the scalp. Rub it well in by pressing hard with the fingers, till a thick, lather is obtained. Leave the hair itself to the last, when it can be rubbed between the hands, Rinse off the lather and apply of the rest of the shampoo as before. This time rinse very thoroughly. When there is no sign of the shampoo left, squeeze out as much water as you can and then wrap the head in a ward towel and press out still more. Dry off by using another warm towel. If possible it is good to finish by lifting the hair blow out in the fresh air and sunshine. In winter, finish drying it by sitting near, but not right in front of the fire. IF I KNEW

If I knew the box where the smiles were kept,

No matter how large the key or
Strong the bolt, I would try so hard,

I would open, I know, for me;
Then over the land and sea broad cast
I would scatter the smiles to play,

That the children's faces might hold them fast
For many many a day.

If I knew a box that was large enough,
To hold the frowns I meet

I would gather them, everyone,
From nursery, School and Street;

Then folding and holding, I'd pack them in,
And turn the monster key,

And hire a giant to drop the box,
To the depths of the deep, deep sea.
